Subject: HUCTW Writes! 3 is cancelled

Dear HUCTW Members,

Due to an overwhelming lack of interest, we are cancelling HUCTW Writes 3.

We've had two successful HUCTW Writes events so far; this third one, however, has proved to be a challenge. Only a very few people expressed interest in reading poems or prose on the theme of working life on Nov. 7; no one signed up for the open mike. We hear you!

Maybe it was that we all get our fill of work and no one wants to hear more about it after hours. Maybe it was that we didn't offer featured readers. Maybe we've exhausted the interest in such events. We're not sure, but if you have thoughts about this, especially suggestions about any kind of event you'd like to see, please email us.

We apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused any of you, and we thank those people who did express interest in participating in Writes 3.

For the HUCTW Writes organizers (Emily Scudder, Jeanne Lafferty and myself),

Jim Henle
